Biographies

Erse Kripa and Stephen Mueller are principals of AGENCY, an interdisciplinary practice engaging contemporary culture through architecture, urbanism, and advocacy. Their projects range from media environments, to guerrilla infrastructures, architecture, and speculative urban research. Seeking productive anomalies in the overlooked and the under-represented, AGENCY identifies and transforms emerging urban paradigms. Kripa and Mueller are the recipients of the Rome Prize in Architecture, fellows of The MacDowell Colony and the New York Foundation for the Arts. Kripa and Mueller are faculty at the TTU College of Architecture in El Paso. Their upcoming book 'FRONTS: Security and the Developing World' will be published in 2016 by ORO Editions.

Xenia Benivolski is a writer and curator currently living in Toronto.

CoLaboratório is a multidisciplinary collective promoting urban transformation through democratic and transversal practices, art, communication and architecture. It activates the cultural, economic and social potential of territories. The construction of new spaces for social exchange is based on micro urban interventions proposing new experiences and inventions for the public and symbolic spaces, especially those which promote interaction and whose interest focus on people and their practices. Some of CoLab projects include Conjunto Vazio—which maps empty real state properties—Linear Park of Vila Madalena [Parque Linear da Vila Madalena] and [Anhangabau River Bridge Ponte do Rio Anhangabau] in São Paulo.

Will Davis is a PhD student in architecture at the University of California, Los Angeles, whose research focuses on the history and theory of urban form in postcolonial contexts. His dissertation project looks at the interplay of infrastructure, industry, and state “lawfare” during and after the American colonial rule of the Philippines.

Eleonora Diamanti is a Postdoctoral Fellow in Urban Humanities at McGill University’s Institute for the Public Life of Arts and Ideas (IPLAI) and the School of Architecture, and holds a doctorate in Semiotics from the Université du Québec à Montréal (UQAM). Her research interests focus on urban culture, the festivalization and aestheticization of contemporary cities, media and mobility, and research-creation.

Christian Dimmer is assistant professor for urban studies at Tokyo’s Waseda University. He earned his PhD from the University of Tokyo on the conceptual history of public space in Japan. Christian’s research centers on citizen urbanism projects, new commons, social innovations and their impact on community resilience.

Pohanna Pyne Feinberg is an artist-educator whose work is generated by curiosity, a desire to share and learn, the resonance of collective memory, and an aspiration to reflect compassion. Her doctoral research explores the pedagogical potential of walking as a creative process and an expressive form. She designs co-creative workshops for schools and community organizations in addition to producing audio walks, sound installations, and photogram prints in collaboration with weather and time.
Natalie completed her Master's of Fine Art Studio Art at McMaster University. In 2015, she received her Bachelor of Art in History and Natalie Jachyra is from Toronto, Ontario and strategies, urban times and urban lights, as are economic structural change and spatial Regional Planning. His main fields of research he has been active in the hackerspace movement, the art collective Fatlab as well as having been a co-founder of Piratbyrån (2003-2009) and Telecomix (2009-2012). Currently he resides in Gothenburg, Sweden. omxi.se

Sophie Hamacher is an artist and filmmaker based between New York and Berlin. She has directed and written projects ranging in genres from full-length documentary to installation videos and experimental films. She holds a BA in Visual and Critical Studies from the School of the Art Institute in Chicago, a Masters Degree in the School of Architecture at Princeton University and loves

Magnus Eriksson is a PhD candidate in Sociology of Law at Lund University and University of Macerata writing on the relation between digital and urban space. He also holds a position as design researcher at the Interactive Institute in Gothenburg. Outside of research he has been active in the hackerspace movement, the art collective Fatlab as well as having been a co-founder of Piratbyrån (2003-2009) and Telecomix (2009-2012). Currently he resides in Gothenburg, Sweden. omxi.se

Sophie Hamacher is an artist and filmmaker based between New York and Berlin. She has directed and written projects ranging in genres from full-length documentary to installation videos and experimental films. She holds a BA in Visual and Critical Studies from the School of the Art Institute in Chicago, a Masters Degree in the School of Architecture at Princeton University and loves

Curt Gambetta is a designer and a PhD student in the School of Architecture at Princeton University. He was formerly the Banham Fellow at the Buffalo School of Architecture in New York and a teaching fellow at the Woodbury University School of Architecture in Los Angeles. His work examines material histories of architecture in India and the design and politics of urban infrastructures such as waste and lighting.

Curt Gambetta is a designer and a PhD student in the School of Architecture at Princeton University. He was formerly the Banham Fellow at the Buffalo School of Architecture in New York and a teaching fellow at the Woodbury University School of Architecture in Los Angeles. His work examines material histories of architecture in India and the design and politics of urban infrastructures such as waste and lighting.

Rita Leistner is a politically engaged photographer and documentarian. Her books include Unembedded: Four Independent Photojournalists on the War in Iraq and Looking for Marshall McLuhan in Afghanistan. She teaches the history of photojournalism at the University of Toronto and is represented by the Stephen Bulger Gallery. Rita is currently at work on a documentary film, One Tree at a Time, about tree planting, war, and the meaning of life.

Rita Leistner is a politically engaged photographer and documentarian. Her books include Unembedded: Four Independent Photojournalists on the War in Iraq and Looking for Marshall McLuhan in Afghanistan. She teaches the history of photojournalism at the University of Toronto and is represented by the Stephen Bulger Gallery. Rita is currently at work on a documentary film, One Tree at a Time, about tree planting, war, and the meaning of life.

Josiane Meier is a researcher and lecturer at the Technische Universität Berlin's Department of Urban and Regional Planning. Her research focuses on the planning and politics of artificial lighting and darkness, and she is co-editor of Urban Lighting, Light Pollution and Society (Routledge, 2015).

Joy Meier is a senior researcher and senior lecturer at the Technische Universität Berlin's Department of Urban and Regional Planning. Her research focuses on the planning and politics of artificial lighting and darkness, and she is co-editor of Urban Lighting, Light Pollution and Society (Routledge, 2015).

Brian Morris is a Senior Lecturer at RMIT University, Melbourne and Director of the Bachelor of Communication (Media). He researches and publishes in the areas of cultural theory, urban place, space and identity; media technologies; and television.

Catie Newell is the founding principal of *Alibi Studio and Assistant Professor of Architecture at the University of Michigan. Her work and research captures spaces and material effects, focusing on the dynamics of atmospheres through the exploration of textures, volumes, and the effects of light and darkness. Newell’s creative practice has been widely recognized for exploring design construction and materiality in relation to location, geography, and cultural contingencies.

Lucia Jalón Oyarzun (@disquietingoose) is an architect by the ETSAM School of Architecture of Madrid where she currently works on her PhD thesis ‘The Rebel Body: The Political as Foundation for a Minor Architecture’. Since 2013 she is editor-in-chief of displacements: an x'scape journal and teaches Philosophy and History of Art at SUR Escuela Madrid.

Christie Pearson a Toronto-based artist, writer, architect, and urban interventionist whose work is inspired by global cultures of public bathing. She is a founding member of SCAPEGOAT JOURNAL, THEWIES organization for immersive vibratory environments, URBANVESSEL site-specific publications include rockspaces, published by Art Metropole in 2000. Macdonald is a registered architect, MOAA (member of the Order of Architects of Quebec).

Rita Leistner is a politically engaged photographer and documentarian. Her books include Unembedded: Four Independent Photojournalists on the War in Iraq and Looking for Marshall McLuhan in Afghanistan. She teaches the history of photojournalism at the University of Toronto and is represented by the Stephen Bulger Gallery. Rita is currently at work on a documentary film, One Tree at a Time, about tree planting, war, and the meaning of life.

Rita Leistner is a politically engaged photographer and documentarian. Her books include Unembedded: Four Independent Photojournalists on the War in Iraq and Looking for Marshall McLuhan in Afghanistan. She teaches the history of photojournalism at the University of Toronto and is represented by the Stephen Bulger Gallery. Rita is currently at work on a documentary film, One Tree at a Time, about tree planting, war, and the meaning of life.

Rita Leistner is a politically engaged photographer and documentarian. Her books include Unembedded: Four Independent Photojournalists on the War in Iraq and Looking for Marshall McLuhan in Afghanistan. She teaches the history of photojournalism at the University of Toronto and is represented by the Stephen Bulger Gallery. Rita is currently at work on a documentary film, One Tree at a Time, about tree planting, war, and the meaning of life.

Rita Leistner is a politically engaged photographer and documentarian. Her books include Unembedded: Four Independent Photojournalists on the War in Iraq and Looking for Marshall McLuhan in Afghanistan. She teaches the history of photojournalism at the University of Toronto and is represented by the Stephen Bulger Gallery. Rita is currently at work on a documentary film, One Tree at a Time, about tree planting, war, and the meaning of life.

OTHER

Inventing Vibratory Worlds: A Companion to the Immersive Design Testbed

Editors: Luisa Rezende, Jonathan Harris, and Liz Lefebvre

Haven (2014)

Pervasive Computing and in the Wild Environments (PCiWE)

Urban Vibratory Spaces (2016)

Contributors:

Elizabeth Stetson, David Smyth, and Alastair Mackintosh

Framing Sound in Urban Environments: A Special Issue of SCAPEGOAT JOURNAL (2016)

Editors: Luisa Rezende, Jonathan Harris, and Liz Lefebvre

Haven (2014)

Pervasive Computing and in the Wild Environments (PCiWE)

Urban Vibratory Spaces (2016)

Contributors:

Elizabeth Stetson, David Smyth, and Alastair Mackintosh

Framing Sound in Urban Environments: A Special Issue of SCAPEGOAT JOURNAL (2016)
performance collective, and the WADE COLLECTIVE for performance and installation art in public pools.

Jasmine Pisapia is a PhD Candidate in Anthropology at Columbia University, with a strong interest in aesthetics, literature and theatre. Her research traces the narratives and images of Italian anthropology on magic and possession rituals, and their entanglement with the representations of modernity. In the present, she considers the toxic realities of Italy’s post-industrial South, while reflecting upon the ethnographic process itself: its notebooks, ironies and inherent theatricality.

She worked as a curator of experimental cinema for the Festival du nouveau cinéma in Montreal, and for the media studies journal Intermédialités. She now lives in Brooklyn.

Christine Preiser is a sociologist writing her PhD dissertation on nightlife and bouncers. Her analysis concerns how bouncers negotiate legal regulations, the informal rules and space of the night, and as such, how they shape urban nighttime playgrounds, among other aspects. She blogs at urban-night-life.com.

Philippe Rahm is a Swiss architect, principal in the office of Philippe Rahm Architectes, based in Paris, France. His work, which extends the field of architecture from the physiological to the meteorological, has received an international audience in the context of sustainability. He has taught architecture design and theory at Bezalel Academy of Arts and Design, Jerusalem. His research work encompasses a range of issues concerning the contemporary city, and the ramifications of architectural developments under contemporary cultures and politics. Erez practices architecture as partner at Frontoffice-Tokyo.

Sparrow stays up past 3:24 AM almost every night. His latest book is How to Survive the Coming Collapse of Civilization (And Other Helpful Hints), published by The Operating System. Sparrow@Sparrow 14 is his Twitter “address.” Many of Sparrow’s readers believe he is a woman.

Will Straw is Professor within the Department of Art History and Communications Studies at McGill University. He is the author of Cyanide and Sin: Visualizing Crime in 1950s America, and the editor of numerous volumes, including Circulation and the City (with Alex Boutros), and Formes urbaines (with Anouk Bélanger and Annie Gérin). Recent, in collaboration with the French geographer Luc Gwiazdinski, he has co-edited a special issue of the journal Intermédialités, Inhabit (the night), and, with Nathalie Casemajor, an issue of the journal Imaginations on “The Visuality of Scenes.” He is currently writing a book on sensational print culture in New York City in the 1920s and 1930s.

Malena Szlam (b. Chile) is an artist filmmaker whose films, installations, and performances explore the relationships between the natural world and the self, the sense of time and intuitive processes engaged with the material aspects of film medium. Her work has been exhibited at numerous venues, including the International Film Festival Rotterdam, TIFF Wavelengths, the Ann Arbor Film Festival, the Museum of Fine Arts Boston, the Hong Kong Film Festival, and the Buenos Aires Museum of Modern Art. Szlam is a member of Double Negative, a Montreal–based artists’ film collective dedicated to the exhibition and production of experimental cinema. Her films are distributed by CFMDC in Toronto.

Peter Lamborn Wilson is a poet, scholar and anarchist activist who lives in the Hudson Valley. He is the author of some 60 books translated into over 15 languages, the most famous being TAZ: The Temporary Autonomous Zone published by Autonomedia. His most recent publications include False Documents from Station Hill Press, riverpeople and researcher (www.jakobfranzschmid.de).

Dj Zhao is an ambassador of rhythm, bringing the best contemporary and classic dance music together from wildly different times and places, with focus on Africa and diaspora. With sets directly connecting “East” and “West,” acoustic and electronic, traditional and hyper–modern, Dj Zhao creates wild hybrids and “Ancient–Futurist” musical collages at once mind–expanding and dance–floor smashing.
A SECRET

With my night goggles, I can see the human soul.
Scapegoat back issues available for purchase and download at scapegoatjournal.org.

Issue 8: Weather, Winter / Spring 2015

Issue 7: Incarceration, Fall / Winter 2014

Issue 6: Mexico DF / NAFTA, Winter / Spring 2014

Issue 5: Excess, Spring / Autumn 2013

Issue 4: Currency, Winter / Spring 2013